Australia Dreaming: Coming Together

Thursday 1st of October 2009 PRE-CONFERENCE

TIME:
9.00am-4.00pm

LENGTH: All day

SESSION: Workshop

PRESENTER: Professor Michael Lambert (PhD)

Master Class: Methods of preventing treatment failure and maximizing positive outcomes monitoring client response to treatment.

The application of a system to deliver providers with real-time feedback on patient progress will be presented along with instructions on how to make real time feedback a part of routine practice. In addition, results showing a persistent, repetitive pattern of patient benefit and reduction of treatment failure in patients seeing providers who received feedback compared to treatment-as-usual outcomes will be provided. Participants will be provided with a Clinical Support Tool Manual that includes three psychological tests and normative data with cut scores that trigger the use of specific interventions that enhance treatment outcomes. Applications with people who have substance abuse problems will be discussed.

(1) Participants will be able to specify a positive and negative treatment outcome based on a standardized scale.

(2) Participants will be able to list steps that need to be taken in order to implement an effective feedback system.

(3) Participants will be able to summarize the results of providing feedback to therapists about non responding patients.

Participants will be able to use a decision tree problem solving strategy and brief psychological tests to prompt changes in the course of psychotherapy.

PRESENTER: Professor Michael Lambert, (PhD)

What a Century of Research on Counselling has Taught Us: The Surprising Power of the Individual Therapist.

Research-based findings on the relationship between client outcome and factors thought to “cause” such changes will be presented. In the context of client contributions and those that can be attributed to specific interventions we have cause to celebrate the important role of the individual counsellor. The implications of research findings suggest the need to focus on individual providers to maximize their contribution and reconsider how they involve themselves in continuing education and supervision.

Morning Tea: 10.15am – 10.45am

10.45am – 11.15am

SESSION: 1A. Paper

PRESENTER: Dr Ann Moir-Bussy, (PhD)

The journey of transformation from novice to counselling. Practitioner to sage – walking in a sacred manner.

In this paper, Dr Moir-Bussy will draw on research that highlights wisdom and symbolic images from the East, from Indigenous wise people, from holy sages, from Jungian insights, from poets, and from counsellors who have gone before us ‘walking in a sacred manner’. There are numerous stories of journeys and challenges that lead to gaining wisdom. In Taoism it is called ‘the way’ or the path that leads to understanding. There are stories embedded in myths and fairy tales. In exploring these images we hope to find inspiration for our journey as counsellors, a journey that requires us to dance between 'age-ing' and 'sage-ing'. We will discuss the challenges such a journey from novice to sage presents for us both personally and professionally as counsellors.

TIME:
11.15am – 11.45am

LENGTH: 30 min

SESSION: 1B. Paper
PRESENTER: Karol Misso, (MA(Couns) GradDipReligEd)
Caught in the Web: Affairs Of The Net And Their Impact On Individuals And Their Intimate Relationships.

Tools of communication have always shaped our lives. However with the meteoric expansion of computer technology virtual relationships are supplementing real life relationships and virtual titillation and cybersex replacing pornographic magazines and videos. While recognizing the many legitimate and valuable uses of the internet for communication, relationship building and enhancement, this presentation seeks to explore the inherent risks to individuals and their intimate relationships when one person in a dyad uses the net to meet emotional and/or sexual needs that are perceived by the other as a threat to the primary relationship.

TIME:
11.45am – 12.15pm

LENGTH: 30 min

SESSION: 1C. Paper
PRESENTER: Jane Garrad, (RN, RM, ONC, GradDipCouns)
Research Endorsing Psychosocial Support And Service Provision Telephone Support Group Program, Cancer Council NSW.

The Cancer Council in NSW has an eight-year history of running Telephone Support Groups (TSG). The TSG program has been specifically designed to deliver a support group service to those cancer patients, carers and bereaved carers who have no or limited access to more conventional forms of support. There is little published research assessing the impact of TSG on conventional outcomes, therefore the findings of the recent formal evaluation of this innovative service undertaken by the Centre for Health Research and Psycho-oncology (CHERP) at the University of Newcastle will be presented.

SESSION: 1D. Paper
PRESENTER: Sue Gilchrist, (BEd, MBACP, MPACFA, MPCAT)
Tasmanian Dreaming – Coming together to make sense of and understand dreams – The role of dream-work sessions in improving waking well-being.

Many people are fascinated by their dreams and ponder whether they have hidden meaning. Does understanding one's dreams and making sense of the messages they carry from the unconscious effect a person's well-being? At the University of Tasmania 32 participants kept dream diaries and waking logs they also attended weekly facilitated dreamwork sessions to help them make sense of their dreams in relation to their waking life. This paper covers the dreamwork process and details the study's findings.

PRESENTER: Susanne Schmid, (MPsych)
Multicultural Counselling Competencies.

In this 90 minute workshop I would like to share my experiences and findings in this field with Australian professionals who are facing the challenges of very diverse clientele. In this interactive workshop we will look at the changing complexion of our society and the diversification, which makes it imperative for the counselling profession to take a proactive stance on cultural diversity. We will also draw on the Dimensions of cultural competency. Most attempts to identify specific cross-cultural counselling competencies have divided them into three dimensions: (a) beliefs and attitudes, (b) knowledge, and (c) skills.

SESSION: 3C
PRESENTER: Karen Anderson, (MSocSci(Couns) BEd)
The Choice is Yours™: The life and philosophy of one of the World's greatest psychiatrist, Victor Frankl.

This workshop provides an opportunity to view a compelling film which is not commercially available. This inspirational 45-minute documentary film was written, directed and produced by New York filmmaker, Ruth Yorkin Drazen for the American Board of Internal Medicine Foundation (ABIM). Frankl's philosophy inspires self-reflection as one searches for the meaning of life. His theories are taught and utilised worldwide. It includes seldom seen archival footage that illustrates the messages this great humanist conveyed through his teachings, lectures and writings.

Psychotherapy from an Aboriginal Perspective.

This experiential workshop engages participants in a cross-cultural awareness process which addresses issues pertaining to loss, trauma and healing as experienced by Aboriginal clients and communities. The aim of the workshop is to invite participants into the Aboriginal client's frame of reference in which they will be confronted with violence, devastation, destitution and continual loss. How do we facilitate a therapeutic healing process when a client's very existence is being threatened?

Google Advertising for the Mental Health Professional in Private Practice – a personal experience.

Advertising on the internet can be an effective part of building a private practice, however it is easy to fail. Michael discusses his positive experience using Google to gain new clients. Specific actions are critical to success with Google marketing. Your practice website must be effective and guidelines are provided. The complex Google Adwords structure is explained simply and you will learn how to create an Adwords program. Techniques for minimising your costs and continuous improvement are outlined. Presentation content including examples, statistics and advice is specific to an audience of mental health professionals.

TIME:
1.30pm – 3.00pm

LENGTH: 90 min

SESSION: 4C

PRESENTER: Karol Misso, (MA(Couns) GradDipReligEd)

Making sense of trust, risk and betrayal in intimate relationships.

The acceptance of the collaborative nature of such a venture together with a firm belief in the potential to rebuild the trustworthiness of the relationship enhances the possibilities for a mutually satisfactory outcome. In the end one must accept that it is not possible to 'cheat proof' a relationship. Rebuilding is costly and will require both 'low cost' and 'high cost' behaviour change. Such behaviours do not have to be punitive or involve sacrifices that make a person consistently uncomfortable and vulnerable. This workshop will elucidate and expand on the above concepts.

Afternoon Tea: 3.00pm – 3.30pm

TIME:
3.30pm – 5.00pm

LENGTH: 90 min

SESSION: 5A

PRESENTER: Narelle McKenzie, (MDevPsych)

Embodying our Dreams, Realising our Visions and Enacting our Purpose – A Radix Body Oriented Perspective.

As we develop and participate in our private practices and our professional associations, we connect to our internal visions of where we want to go and develop? What assists us to sustain these visions as we meet the interpersonal and institutional challenges? What inner and outer resources do we need to enact them to fulfilment?

Why do some clients struggle with visioning a future that integrates thinking and affect? Why do some clients struggle with 'just doing' what is obvious to be done? Such concerns will be the focus of this workshop.

Coming together discussing intimacy, sex, and the fragility of life: How therapists respond to working with couples regardless of gender.

This workshop will address issues of how we, as a society, walk the fine line around the subject of sex and intimacy. We explore how therapists create a therapeutic relationship with a couple when intimacy and sex conjure up different meanings for individuals. Additionally, we will explore how therapists can locate themselves and facilitate the communication that is so paramount to the healthy continuation of a relationship. It is this communication that enables couples to be both together and separate and to develop their idiosyncratic intimacy.

Creating a Comfortable-Enough Space: Coming Together
In Effective Counselling Supervision.

In this workshop we will look at these questions from the perspective of both supervisor and supervisees. We will look at what makes good supervision exciting and challenging for both and how to get the best out of supervisory relationships. The major outcome for participants will be the opportunity to evaluate their own experience of supervision. For supervisors, they will be able to objectively examine their own practice, and identify ideas or practices which may enhance the supervision services they provide.

End of day

Saturday 3rd October 2009

TIME:
9.30am – 11.00am

LENGTH: 90 min

SESSION: 6A

PRESENTER: Peter Howie, (BSc)

Seeing a person on their own terms.

This workshop will actively and experientially work with the principle of seeing a person on their own terms. During the workshop we will examine what are the cultural and individual forces that make doing this action so difficult. There are threats and concerns for individuality, there are concerns for getting it wrong, there are worries about another person's autonomy. All these issues are relevant in other areas of counselling, psychotherapy and group psychotherapy as well.

TIME:
9.30am – 11.00am

LENGTH: 90 min

SESSION: 6B

PRESENTER: Rob Brodie, (MSc, TEP)

Role-playing in a group – enhancing a collective Evolutionary dream.

The first technique in using role-play is to seek to establish such a group micro culture. Through action and discussion, the principles of warm-up and creating of a learning culture within which role play may be enjoyable and constructive will be applied and identified. In this experiential workshop participants will be invited to reflect on their own experience of role-play, or of implementing role-play, in counselling training community or educational settings. Teaching will be based on these and other examples.

SESSION: 6C

PRESENTER: Richard Hill, (BA (Linguistics), DipCouns)

Therapy and the Brain: What has the brain got to do with it?

This seminar gives an overview of the brain and especially those areas related to the emotions. We will examine the neuro-biological processes of stress and anxiety and how these affect human behaviour; the social cognitive brain; mirror neurons; interpersonal neurobiology and some behaviour issues like ADHD, Alexithymia, compulsive disorders and learning difficulties. The substance of the seminar borrows from the likes of Dr Daniel Siegel (interpersonal neurobiology), Lou Cozolino PhD (The Neuroscience of Psychotherapy), Ernest Rossi PhD (The Psychobiology of Gene Expression) and Matthew Lieberman (Social Neuroscience)

PRESENTER: Paul McCauley (DClinSci (Couns))

How and why one may use symbolic objects to enhance the therapeutic process.

This workshop will focus on how and why a therapist may encourage a client to use objects symbolically to help the client represent, interpret and realize the complexities of their inner experience. In my own psychotherapy practice over a number of years I have found that symbolic object use can make a powerful and worthwhile contribution to the psychotherapy process.

LENGTH: 90 min

SESSION: 8B

PRESENTER: Dorothy Ratnarajah (MCouns)

Self care for counsellors researching the 'tough topics'

Counselling researchers sometimes choose as their research topic issues that could be described as the 'tough topics'. Among these 'tough topics' are situations where complicated grief has been experienced by the informants. Research into the experiences of family member suicide, missing persons, victims of abuse – sexual assault, domestic violence, childhood abuse/neglect and homicide are such 'tough topics'. The presentation will outline research methodology, some case studies and results to date of two research projects. Undertaking research into these areas may allow the researcher to experience vicarious trauma. Suggested self care for the researchers will be presented.

PRESENTER: Elizabeth Synnot (LLB, MSocSci)

Exploration of values and world views using Sociodrama: What would happen if...?

We all have experiences of our worldviews and values being similar enough and those that clash. This may become apparent at a dinner party, in your work setting, family gathering, in community life, or at a conference such as this one. Even at a dinner party some cooperation is required. Perhaps such differences are felt more acutely when parents can't agree on the upbringing of their children. This session will be of benefit to those who are interested in the subject, viz., exploring sameness and difference, and those curious about the application of sociodrama to this group-life dilemma.
